Sustainable Gardening Starts with Honey Bees*

What: Norfolk Botanical Garden – 5th Annual Virginia Honey Bee Festival

Where: Norfolk Botanical Garden, 6700 Azalea Garden Road, Norfolk, VA 23518

When: Saturday, August 15, 2015 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

(Norfolk, VA) – On Saturday, August 15, 2015 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., join Norfolk Botanical Garden (NBG) and the Beekeepers Guild of Southeast Virginia for the 5th Annual Virginia Honey Bee Festival and Experience the BUZZ! This year’s message is to help the community understand the critical role of bees. You can make a difference! Incorporate bee friendly plants into your landscape and use organic pesticides versus traditional pesticides with harmful chemicals. Buzz on over to Norfolk Botanical Garden for a fun-filled day!

Garden guests will enjoy children’s activities, demonstrations, honey & bee products, handmade jewelry and ceramics, refreshments, live music, honey samples, a costume parade and much more! Come see the inside of a real live bee hive and purchase your own bee friendly plants. Children that dress as a bee will receive a free honey stick!

The Honey Bee Festival is FREE with Garden admission and will take place on the Baker Hall Visitor Center terrace. Fall in love with bees and create a Buzzzzzz of your own! To learn more about the Beekeepers Guild of Southeast Virginia, visit <http://beekeepersguild.org/>

The Garden is truly a masterpiece with wildlife emerging and flowers blooming daily.
