

CONNECTING WITH NATURE

ANNUAL REPORT 2023-2024

norfolk botanical garden

From the PRESIDENT

As we reflect on the past year, we are filled with immense pride and excitement for the remarkable transformation and growth we've experienced. This year has been one of profound change, propelling us forward on an inspiring journey toward a future rich with potential.

With the dawn of the New Year, we are proud to unveil the Garden of Today—our shared vision now becoming a vibrant reality. This achievement is made possible by the unwavering support of our 1,700+ donors, dedicated volunteers, Board of Directors, committed members, and passionate staff. Together, we are fostering deeper connections between people and the natural world, sharing the beauty of nature with even more individuals.

As we prepare to plant within the Perry Conservatory, I invite you to explore an article on page two, highlighting one of the desert plants we're cultivating in our collection. It's a perfect example of how our Garden is not only a space of beauty but a living testament to the diversity of our natural environment.

This year has been nothing short of extraordinary. We welcomed over 410,000 visitors, including more than 6,000 K–12 students and adults who engaged with our innovative and inspiring educational programs. In addition, we introduced nearly 17,000 new plants into our community through generous donations and fundraising sales, expanding our living collection and enriching the experience for all who visit.

Our commitment to conservation and education remains steadfast. We are thrilled to announce the upcoming opening of the Brock Environmental Education Center. This 3,600-square-foot facility will serve as a hub for environmental education, offering students hands-on learning experiences in areas such as plant biology, sustainability, and ecology. Featuring an education lab, classroom, greenhouse, workroom, and new gardens, the Brock Center will empower the next generation of environmental stewards, nurturing a deeper understanding of the critical issues facing our planet.

As we close this remarkable year, we extend our heartfelt thanks for your ongoing support. Your involvement plays a vital role in the success of our mission, and we are deeply grateful for your partnership in bringing our vision to life. Together, we continue to strengthen our bond with nature and with each other.

We look forward to another year of growth, exploration, and shared inspiration. Thank you for being an integral part of our Garden family.

Peter Schmidt

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS

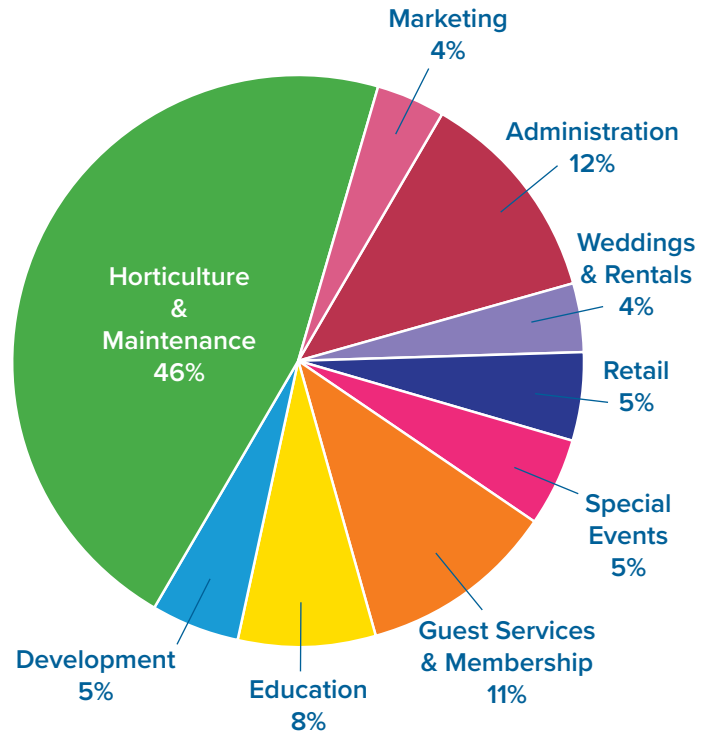

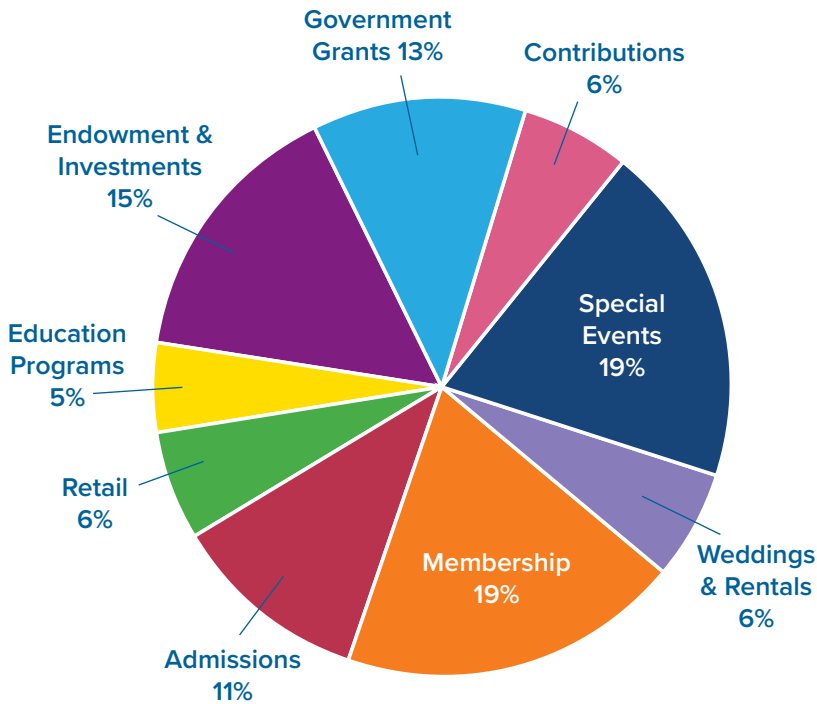

Building personal connections with the community is one of the most rewarding aspects of public horticulture. Norfolk Botanical Garden partnered with The Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art and the Chesapeake-Virginia Beach Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, expanding our community outreach. This fiscal year, staff engaged with over 3,500 people through various community events and programs. The Garden also donated more than 1,000 plants to support local beautification projects, inspiring a deeper connection to nature. Additionally, by strengthening our ties with local universities, we've helped broaden student exposure to careers in public horticulture, offering valuable internships and research opportunities.

A YEAR OF GROWTH

The Horticulture Department spent the past year both looking back and looking forward. What is perhaps the oldest tree at Norfolk Botanical Garden (NBG), a white oak (Quercus alba) by Cobblestone Bridge, has been celebrated with the creation of a new garden and a stone walkway and patio at its base. Across the canal from this venerable oak, is another of the same species, perhaps a slightly younger sibling. It too has been celebrated with a new garden that includes two circular patios connected by brick pathways. These were designed by staff and were intended to tie-in to the look of Le Jardin and The Conifer Garden, creating a unified design from the lake to NATO Bridge, all of which can also be enjoyed by boat.

The gardens mentioned above could not have been possible without the generous financial support of one of our donors -The Galliford-Mulard Foundation. It also would not have been possible without the hard work from numerous volunteers. In fact, little of what you see at NBG would be possible without volunteers, and they were even a critical part of this year's fall and spring plant sales, the most successful to date. However, success is not just measured in revenue. It is also measured by introducing good quality plants into the local landscape, many of which will support local pollinators and other wildlife for years to come.

Over the past year, the Horticulture staff participated in 35 local outreach events. These events were diverse from habitat restoration in the Dismal Swamp and invasive species removal partnering with the Elizabeth River Project, to numerous presentations to local garden clubs. Here at the Garden, NBG Horticulture staff led 24 walk & talks and taught 78 classes and workshops.

Looking ahead, guests are able to see the future unfolding as the Perry Conservatory rises before their eyes. Staff are eagerly awaiting to "get the keys" and fill the space with plants and are looking forward to sharing many plant stories. Some of the tales will speak about exploration, about loss and conservation, others about healing and resilience, some about connection and commerce, and for many of the plants, their beauty will speak for itself.
